

Dr. Bhuvadol Gomontean, Ph.D.

Dr. Bhuvadol Gomontean is one of our advisors and a member of our research team in Faculty of Science, Maharakham University. He is an expert in ecology.

Education Background:

1. BS (Animal Science, King Mongkut's Institute of Technology Ladkrabang, Thailand, 1993.)
2. MS (Bio-Ecology, Chulalongkorn University, Thailand, 1997.)
3. Ph.D.(Ecology, Chulalongkorn University, Thailand, 2007.)

Research Interests:

- Biodiversity and conservation biology
- Natural resources and environmental management.
- Ecological Indicators

Researches :

- Gomontean, B.1997. Relationship between soil properties and structure of deciduous forest ecosystem Huai Kha Khaeng Wildlife Sanctuary. Master's Thesis. Chulalongkorn University.
- Gomontean, B.2004. Ecological Indicators for assessing ecosystem integrity for cultural forest management: A case study in Maharakham Province, Northeastern Thailand. Doctoral Dissertation. Chulalongkorn University.
- Klinhom, U., Chutichudet, P., Klinhom, W., Sueakaew, S., Treesukon, U., Suthisa, C., Silapan, M., Puntharukpong, T., Polrhom, W., Gomontean, B., and Wongphakham, K. 1998. Cultural Forest Conservation in Northeastern Thailand: A model Study in Community Based Sustainable Resource Management. Submitted to Office of Environment Policy and Planning, Ministry of Science and Technology and Environment. 124 pp.

Research Publication:

- Gomontean, B. Gajaseni.j, Jones, G.E., and Gajaseni, N. 2007. The Development of Appropriate Ecological Criteria and Indicators for Community Forest Conservation Using Participatory Methods: A Case Study in Northeastern Thailand. Ecological Indicators. Article in Press.

Conference Presentations:

- Relationships Between Soil Properties and Structure of Deciduous Forest Ecosystems, Huay Kha Khaeng Wildlife Sanctuary (1997), 1st BRT Annual Conference, Chiang Mai, Thailand.
- Poster presentation in entitle "Ecosystem management for sustainable use of Non-Timber Forest Products of cultural forest in Northeastern Thailand: A case study in Maharakham Province.", 6th Graduated Congress (December 1st ,2001), National University of Singapore, Singapore.